Read what people are saying...

"The word is out. I think the law has been in effect, like forever, but I think I've heard more conversation due to the media blitz they've done. So for immediate effects among kids, I think that has been a very good thing."

"Not one group could do it on their own: not the parents, not public health, not law enforcement, not treatment."

"I think it's a combined effort of all our communities at least within McLeod County. We've taken a county approach, versus an individual approach."

"If we make a few arrests on it immediately, and that starts to deter that practice from continuing, then in my mind, that's a success."

This meeting is made possible through a grant from the Enforcing Underage Drinking Laws Program, Minnesota Department of Public Safety.
